It's based on the idea that you click or touch a target picture and it will tell you what famous person is in it. The main difference between this app and the existing ones is that instead of scanning all the photos in your library, it will instantly scan the target photo and then give you information on what famous person was in that photo. It's still in it's early stages and I've only added the picture identification and partial translation, but the touch detection hasn't changed. I'm planning on working on it a bit more over the next few months. I will post images of it as it develops, but I thought it'd be a good time to show how it's coming along. You play a team manager for a football team from around the world. You have players to purchase and upgrade. You have contracts to negotiate and pay. You can win matches. There's warping involved. I've been working on this one for about a year now, and it's finally taking shape. For more info, check out my website at I still have a lot of things that need to be coded and some more art that I need to complete. I'm hoping to have an alpha up on this website once everything is done and tested. More images. Also, I'm planning on putting in several team names, but I won't say what they are for now. How about the Facebook blue tick on the right side? Why
